This course provides intense practice with habits of reading, writing, thinking, and revising essential to postsecondary academic work. Designed for students who want to create a strong foundation for themselves in academic reading and writing. Available only during fall semester. Students who complete ENG 100 move on to ENG 106 during the spring semester. Students will not earn credit or grades for completing both ENG 101 and either course in the College Composition Stretch Sequence, ENG 100 and ENG 106.

Students must complete both ENG 100 and ENG 106 with a minimum grade of C or better in each course to satisfy the General Education College Composition requirement. Neither course taken alone will satisfy this requirement.

ENG 101: College Composition

Prerequisites: All beginning college writers sign up for ENG 101
Satisfies the following general education requirement(s): ENG 101 is mandatory for all students
Satisfies the following English major requirement(s): None

Course description: Students practice the ways in which writing serves to expand, clarify, and order experience and knowledge, with particular attention to persuasive writing. Satisfactory completion of the course depends upon quality of weekly writing assignments as well as demonstration of proficiency in college-level writing.

The Translingual Sections of ENG 101: Half the seats are reserved for multilingual students; half are reserved for other students who have a personal or professional interest in language difference (journalism, international business or engineering, social work, education, etc.). The logic of the section is twofold: first, we assume that putatively monolingual native speakers of English have much to learn from each other; second, the rapidly globalizing workplace needs people who can negotiate productively across multiple languages.

Please confirm that your students are specifically interested in enrolling in the Translingual Section due to the explanations above; please have them submit a brief description of their interests to our Writing Center Director Paige Mitchell via email: paige.mitchell@maine.edu

This section is located in Belfast at the Hutchinson Center – FHC.

The Multiliteracy Writing Center: Traditionally the Writing Center provides one-on-one tutor support for any writing and reading assignment. We still provide that support and beginning in the 2016 spring semester we will support multimodal projects. This means we can help with document and website design such as incorporating images and/ or sounds, posters, flyers, publishing iBooks, and we’ll also support PowerPoint presentations and have podiums and resources to support public speaking assignments. Please view our schedule to see the new Writing Workshop programs we provide, and please consider using the Multiliteracy Writing Center as a comfortable place to read, compose, and design projects.

If you’re interested in learning more about what the Multiliteracy Writing Center supports, or in having a representative from the center visit your class, please contact our Writing Center Director Paige Mitchell via email: paige.mitchell@maine.edu

5 seats in all “live” sections reserved for English majors & minors, and creative-writing minors

Course Description: Offers students experience in writing in three major forms: autobiographical narrative, fiction, and poetry.

Offers students experience in writing in three major forms: screenwriting (for TV and film), fiction, and poetry.

ENG 206:0001 (86406): Descriptive and Narrative Writing (Staff)
NV406 – 12:30 p.m. - TTh

Prerequisites: ENG 101 or equivalent.

Satisfies the general education Artistic & Creative Expression and Writing Intensive requirements.

Satisfies the following English major requirement(s): May count towards the Creative Writing concentration; please refer to the English major checklist and consult with your advisor.

Course description: This course in descriptive and narrative writing will help students learn how to effectively capture personal experience in narrative form. Using memoirs, as well as short stories, drama, journalism, and critical theory, students will closely analyze characters, motivation, conflict, setting, and dialogue. Students will examine the ways in which writers craft their narratives to depict their personal ‘truth’ while creating appeal and suspense for their reading audience. Weekly classes will focus on discussing the texts we read as well as having students compose personal narrative works of their own. Special emphasis on the informal, autobiographical essay.
ENG 222: Reading Poems

Prerequisite: 3 credit hours of English

Satisfies the following general education requirement(s): Western Cultural Tradition, Artistic & Creative Expression and Writing Intensive

Satisfies the Following English Major Requirement: ENG 222 is a core course

Course description: Focuses on helping students develop critical skills particularly suited to the interpretation and analysis of poetry. Readings will include poems from different eras in both traditional and innovative forms. May cover a range of poetic practices and a variety of media: including, for example, poetry readings, little magazines and presses, digital texts, and poetic movements.

Course description for Sec 0003: Required of all English majors, this is an introduction to the art of poetry for readers. With the demands of 300 & 400-level literature courses in mind, the course focuses on helping students develop critical skills particularly suited to the interpretation and analysis of poetry. We will examine the function of poetic conventions--including figures of speech, meter, rhythm, and rhyme--in a variety of different poetic forms from many eras. We will also discuss the rhetorical stances that poets assume and the responses that poets seek to evoke in their readers. This is a technical class for English majors. Non-English majors who want an in-depth course on the analysis of poetry are welcome. The English Department has many 200-level classes designed for non-English majors; this is not one of them. The goal of this course is to instill a lifelong love of poetry in its students.

Required Texts:
- Poetry, An Introduction, by Michael Meyer (any edition is OK)
- A standard dictionary
- MLA Handbook
- Handouts

ENG 229:0990(87566): Topics in Literature: Monster Literature (Alan Marks) WEB

Prerequisite: 3 credit hours of English

Course description: The idea of the monster in literature has been one that has been around since some of the earliest literature. How that figure is dealt with (and what meanings it might have) has changed greatly over time, however. What meanings does the literary monster hold? What purposes do they serve in their stories? In the end, what does it even mean to be “monstrous?”

This course will try to answer these questions by exploring the subject from some of the earlier, more “traditional” representations such as Dracula and Frankenstein, up through more modern interpretations of the literary monster. In the end we may be left with more questions than answers as we start to question exactly who and what “is” the monster in some of these stories.

The reading list for the course has not yet been set but may include some of the following:
- Posted online
- Crane’s The Monster
- Assorted critical essays
- Broadview Press editions
- Stoker’s Dracula
- Shelley’s Frankenstein (1812 edition)
Stevenson’s The Strange Case of Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde
Beowulf
Gardner’s Grendel
Dunn’s Geek Love
Films The Elephant Man

Prerequisite: 6 credits beyond ENG 101 (ENG 170 and ENG 222 recommended) or instructor permission

Satisfies the following general education requirement(s): Western Cultural Tradition

Satisfies the following English Major requirement(s): British Literature and 300-400 level literature course

Course description: Renaissance suggests a rebirth of classical models, but this period (late 16th and early 17th centuries) is also one of startling innovation. The literature of Shakespeare and his contemporaries can be wildly comic and tragic, lyrical and grotesque, epic and domestic, rewriting the medieval and anticipating the modern worlds. Emphasis may vary among genres (drama, lyric, narrative poetry), theme (romance, revenge, rebellion, reverence), and authors (Shakespeare, Spenser, Marlowe, Donne, Milton for example). This reading intensive course introduces representative texts from a crucial period in literary history, and it provides students the opportunity to practice reading and research skills in preparation for work in advanced seminars.
ENG 355:0001 (89390): Modernism (Deborah Rogers)
NV108 – 9:30-10:45 a.m. – TTh
Prerequisites: 6 credits beyond ENG 101 (ENG 170 and ENG 222 recommended) or instructor permission
General Education Requirements: Western Cultural Tradition
Satisfies the following English major requirement(s): 300-400 level literature course

Course description: From sentiment to sadism, astounding change ignited the Restoration and Eighteenth Century, making this period a watershed that marks the transition from Renaissance to Modern. This reading-intensive class will consider literature against the background of this historical change, inheritance, and influence. Works by Pope, Behn, Cavendish, Finch, Congreve, Dryden, Swift, Defoe, Richardson, Johnson, and Radcliffe, among others. The focus on reading and research skills will prepare students for work in advanced seminars.

ENG 381:0001 (89399) Themes in Literature: TBA (Sarah Harlan-Haughey)
R206 – 11:00 a.m. - 12:15 p.m. – TTh
Prerequisites: 6 credits beyond ENG 101 (ENG 170 and ENG 222 recommended) or instructor permission
Satisfies the following general education requirement(s): Western Cultural Tradition
Satisfies the following English major requirement(s): 300-400 level literature course

Course description: When we approach study of literature thematically, surprising connections can emerge. In this reading-intensive course, we will trace a single, defined theme through multiple literary works. This journey through a particular theme is a delightful way for you to practice your reading and research skills in preparation for advanced seminars. Can be taken more than once for credits, provided that the theme covered is different.

ENG 382:0001 (89397): Major Genres Historical Period (Staff)
SL201 – 9:00 - 10:00 a.m. – MWF
Prerequisites: 6 credits beyond ENG 101 (ENG 170 and ENG 222 recommended) or instructor permission
General Education Requirements: Western Cultural Tradition
Satisfies the following English major requirement(s): 300-400 level literature course

Course description: Tragedy, comedy, lyric, novel, play or film: these are just a few of the divisions, called “genres” that we use to distinguish one kind of literary art from another. Continuing and deepening the work begun in 170 and/or 222, Major Genres in Historical Perspectives is a reading-intensive course on the thematic and technical developments of one specific genre within a broader cultural and historical framework. This theoretical approach to genre studies will allow students to spend more time reading in a genre they love, while giving them the opportunity to practice their research skills in preparation for work in advanced seminars. May be taken more than once for credit, provided the genre covered is different.

ENG 470:0001 (87326) Topics in Literary Theory and Criticism (Caroline Bicks)
NV406 – 11:00 a.m. - 12:15 p.m. – TTh
Prerequisites: ENG 271 and 3 credit hours of literature at the 300 or 400 level, or instructor permission.
General Education Requirements: Writing Intensive

Course description: Although the word “theory” is often associated with “abstraction” and the study of theory is often seen as indifferent to— and willfully detaching from—the concrete and situated materiality of experience, a sizable portion of modern and contemporary theoretical thought is, in fact, entirely dedicated to the work of reclaiming the centrality of embodied experience, affirming the integration of mind and body, and articulating (or trying to articulate) the material/sensorial corporeality of thinking, knowing, and inter-relating.

The seminar will explore these modern and contemporary theories of corporeality, the reality of embodiment. Together, we will look at theoretical discourses that explore the many aspects of this reality: embodied knowledge, imagination, emotions, self-actualization, cultural interactions and social transactions.
Thought-experimentation, critical innovation, and open-minded inquisitiveness are the main traits of the seminar readings. Students will encounter texts that present a dynamic and energizing blending of social sciences, neurosciences, linguistics, psychology, history, anthropology, gender studies, race studies, and literary studies.

ENG 490:0001 (26971) Research Seminar in Literature: Subversion and Transformation in Modernist Writers, Virginia Woolf and Rebecca West (Laura May Cowan)
NV406 – 9:30-10:45 a.m. – TTh
Prerequisites: ENG 271 and 6 hours of 300 or 400 level literature courses or instructor permission
General Education Requirements: Satisfies the General Education Writing Intensive and Capstone Experience Requirements.
Satisfies the following English major requirements: 400-level literature and capstone

Course description: The course will study the careers of two leading modernist women writers, Rebecca West (1892-1983) and Virginia Woolf (1882-1941). It will be designed to give students a strong grounding in historical analysis of literature and also to help them probe the social, political, ideological, and aesthetic forces which determine the creation of and reception of literature. I have chosen Rebecca West and Virginia Woolf for their important roles in the modernist movement. Both women’s fiction and journalism survey many social and cultural events of the twentieth century. Both women were active feminists who wrote about and participated in the struggle for women’s suffrage and women’s rights.

Their works have elicited controversy from readers, scholars, and politicians. The controversy that they have created will be part of our subject. The emphasis will be on literary works written before World War II, but we will use later literary essays and political journalism to contextualize these works. We may also look at dramatic and film versions of their works.

Texts may include:

By Rebecca West
The Return of the Soldier
The Judge
A Letter to a Grandfather
Harriet Hume
Black Lamb and Grey Falcon
A Strange Necessity
The Young Rebecca, ed. Jane Marcus
Woman as Artist and Thinker

By Virginia Woolf
Jacob’s Room
Orlando
To the Lighthouse
Mrs. Dalloway
Moments of Being
A Room of One’s Own
